THE STUDIO

Discover the art of energy-driven design.

Let's create something extraordinary, together.

Welcome to Mad Works Studio, where creativity meets philosophy to craft timeless designs that resonate with energy and meaning. Founded by Nishikant Joshi, a celebrated artist from Pune, Mad Works Studio blends the ancient Indian philosophy of energy with modern aesthetics to create designs that inspire, connect, and transform. Our studio specialises in branding collateral designs and interior art décor that go beyond visual appeal.

Every logo, every space, and every design detail is meticulously crafted to embody a unique story, reflecting the character and energy of the individual or brand it represents. At Mad Works, we believe design is more than just aesthetics—it's a language of energy that influences how spaces feel and brands connect with their audience. Inspired by ancient Indian sages and powered by modern technology, our work delivers a seamless balance between tradition and innovation. Whether you're looking to redefine your brand identity or create spaces that exude harmony and positivity, Mad Works Studio is your partner in bringing your vision to life.

MEET THE FOUNDER

NISHIKANT JOSHI

“Every line, color, and curve holds energy—my art simply helps it speak.”

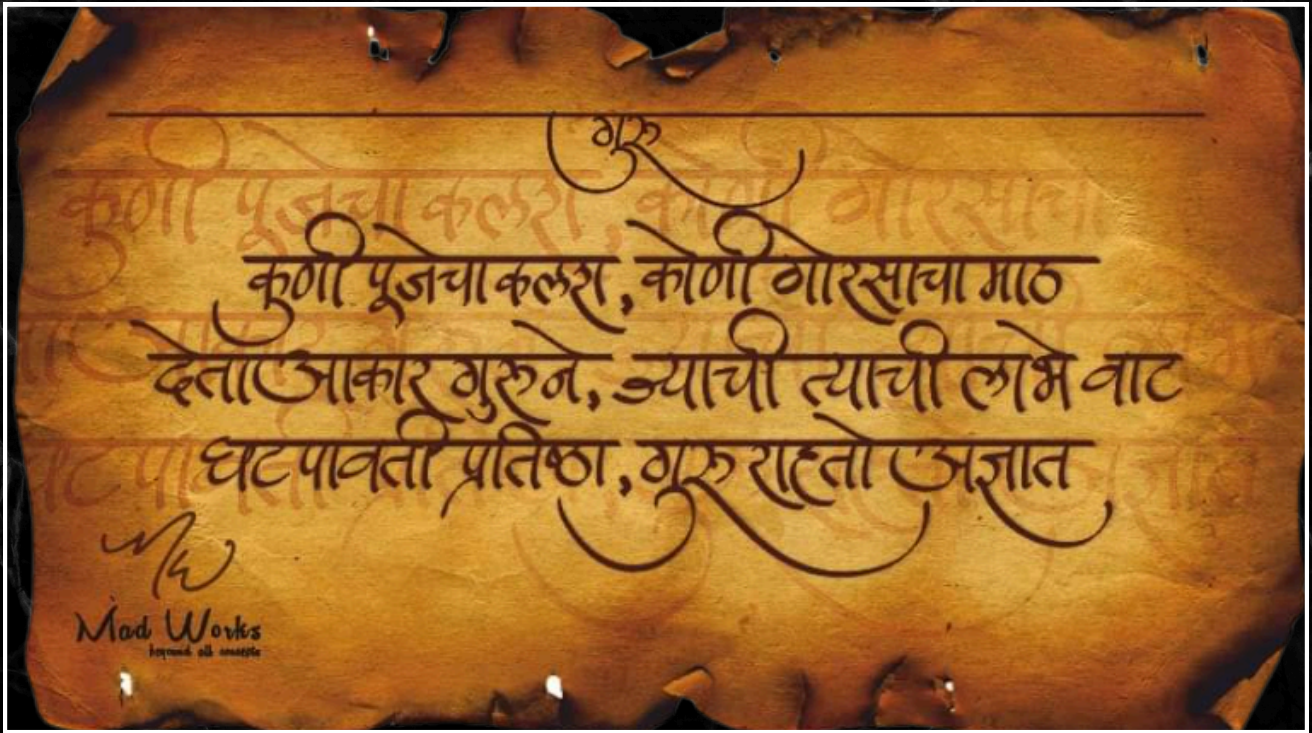

With over a decade of experience, Nishikant has mastered the art of storytelling through branding collateral and interior artistry. His designs go beyond mere aesthetics, embodying the spirit and character of the brands and spaces they represent. Whether it’s a logo that tells a story or artwork that transforms a space, every creation is infused with meaning and energy.

OUR PURPOSE

To deliver tangible and intangible value to customers through creative collateral driven by the philosophy of energy in each endeavour undertaken by Mad Works Studio.

OUR CREATIVE COMPASS

At Mad Works Studio, we believe that Bharat's culture is fully derived from the philosophy of energy. We believe everything, living and non-living, works on the principle of transfer of energy. Every creation has its own character; Mad Works Studios envisions a world where every creation exudes positive energy that is utilized towards building a world where constructive creation reigns supreme.

GALLERY

Mad Works Studio has been creating art through understanding the energy and intent of the recipient,

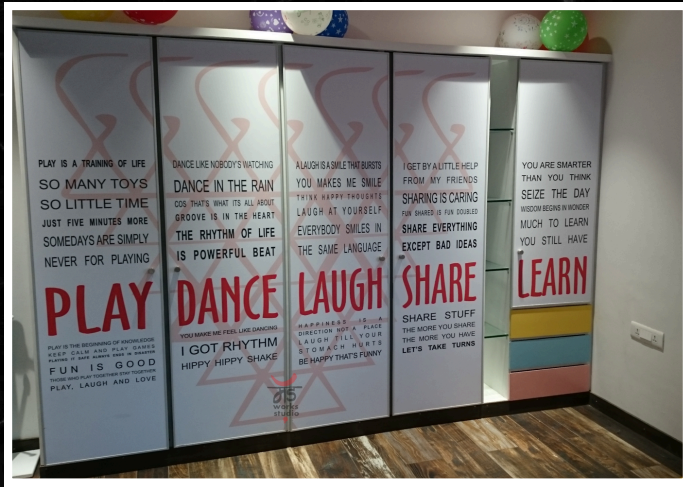

Over the years, we have delivered dozens upon dozens of successful art projects bringing smiles to countless number of faces, manifesting positivity, serenity, and have imbibed positive emotions into the minds of people looking upon the art.

From sculptures, to wall arts, murals, and even corporate logos, here's a sneak peak into what Mas Works Studio has done over the past years.

MAD STORIES

The Timeless Children's Room

A couple, being the doting parents they were, wanted a children's room that remained with them for a long time.

While their first instinct was to go for having the kids' favourite characters portrayed on the wall, we had something else on our minds. We chose to keep the colourful lives of childhood intact through our use of bright shades, but at the same time, we went along with a timeless message etched permanently on the doors, for we may outgrow our favourite characters, but we never outgrow our inner child.

Their bed is a constant reminder of the friendships that we cultivate as children. We adorned the walls with their favourite pose with their best friends - their cousins who the kids will grow up with to become the best buddies, keeping scope for placing newer photos as they grow up.

Fashioned in a bunk bed style, the railing, carved to reflect their names, Nishu and Neel fell in love with the room that was to be theirs forever and unbeknownst to them, would become one of the best memoirs of their colourful and wonder filled childhood.

Inspired by everyday life in the city, Nishikant Joshi's wall art tells of his engagement with quotidian emotions

The World as a Canvas

Nishikant Joshi on getting imaginative with colour and forms on city wall

BUSHRA SATKHED

THE WORLD is his inspiration, his paint-box is his treasure and the walls of Pune, his canvas. Nishikant Joshi says that he thrives on the emotions that everyday life presents him, which allow him to expand his imagination on canvas. At a recent exhibition at Creativity, Yerwada, organised by Abhiyakti, a platform to make art availstrated that painting on walls needn't be restricted to political caricatures and social messages alone.

His street art ranges from abstract horses to realistic sadhus, some even have Hollywood characters. "I have always been inspired by nature," he says. "Walls are the first human canvas and, in the history of human development, the first creation we did is on cave walls. Wall painting is the actual base of human creations as you express Joshi started on art early in life and travelled through murals, blogs, wall painting and intricate depictions on canvas. His gallery, Mad Works Studio, in Pune and Aurangabad, are famous for his vast array of paintings. "I believe that art is in my DNA. My father used to sketch and make sculptures in his spare time," says Joshi.

He told people who had gathered around his works at the exhibition that wall paintings are popular in other coun-more possibilities of this form of art is a need to have people's participation express themselves through art."

If you are thinking of taking a brush yourself, Joshi says that but artists should accept who they are out thinking about their education, grees or getting stuck in any particular dia, style or pattern. "Just express yourself with whatever you can find. An artist never made, he is always born. An
